

Making a Woman Feel Secure - An attentive husband has a confident wife

Bhakti Vidya Purna Swami explains that the chain reaction in a women's brain is "if you (the man) are inconsiderate it means that you are not attached. If you are not attached it means you are not attracted. If you are not attracted there is no relationship. This makes the woman insecure. Then the man loses her trust.

When the woman is insecure, she will argue even if the man is right. Then he can't solve a problem with logic. It's not about what she did wrong, it's about the man's making her feel insecure.

For the woman everything is about the experience. So to solve a problem the man needs to regain her trust and make her feel secure again. Then she will realize what she did wrong herself. So an attentive man knows how to give her a good experience, so she never feels insecure. And then she remains confident.

So a confident woman has an attentive husband.