

Falling in Love

By Mahatma Das

Any fool can fall in love. It doesn't require that you do anything other than become intoxicated and enamored by another person. When the drug wears off, when the flame burns out, too many people are left in the dark because they don't realize that it's not about how the other person makes you feel but how you make them feel. Be the kind of partner you would want to live with.